As THE Special Jury List will be shortly revised, the present is a suitable opportunity -for calling attention to an alteration in the principle upon which it is based, called for by the change introduced by the recent Ordinance, which permits special juries being summoned on important criminal cases. The Ordinance in question-was wanted i order to avoid the possibility of juries not of sufficient responsibility being empanuelled in such eases; but it does not necessitate that the juryunga summoned under its provisions should be of the same class as those who are required for Special Jurors, and as the list of those gentlemen is somewhat limited, the the new rule entails a considerable amount of work upon them.

should be selected chiefly from gentlemen of experience and knowledge of business, with amongst the busines, and when he found it, it a view to having the advantage of those who possess skilled knowledge to be applied to the decision of commercial cases of intricacy a u for 48 cash, from the first defendant, and to and importance. But these qualities are not accompanying last witness in searching the but, required in the kind of jurors wanted for criminal cases, the importance of which depends upon the magnitude of the crime and the severity of the punishment to follow a conviction, rather than upon the intricacy of the facts to be considered or the principles to be applied. In the one class of cases we require skilled, in the other, responsible jurors, and consequently suitable persons can be found for trying criminal cases of importance without necessarily obtaining them from those who, under the old system, would be marked out by their position, experience, or intelligence as proper persons to be placed upon the Special Jury List.

The difficulty which the ordinance for having Special Jurors in criminal cases was meant to overcome was, that when juries were taken from the Common Jury list, it happended at times that perhaps more than half of them were foreigners, chiefly Portuguese, who did not thoroughly understand English, and were little likely to be able to grasp the nature of a case. If this difficulty be overcome, all that is required will be obtained. The plan, therefore, which ought to be adopted, would seem to be that there should be two Special Jury Lists, the one for civil suits, as heretofore existing, and the other for important criminal cases. The former should be chosen from gentlemen possessing skilled knowledge; the latter from all those who are thoroughly acquainted with the English language, and possess such qualifications as to experience and common sense as will bring them up to the standard of reliable and responsible

This plan would meet the exigencies of the matter in a way which would be fair to all concerned. Those who are called upon to act as Special Jurors may fairly be considered entitled to be relieved of a certain amount of the general, work of juries, as it is only just that if they give their brains in the difficult cases, they should have the advantage of their time, by being exempted from serving in the less intricate proceedings. As matters at present stand, gentlemen on the Special Jury have more than once been detained for days over cases, which did not require any special skill or knowledge, and, unless some such principle as we have above indicated be adopted, the new Ordinance must press very heavily upon the Special Jurors, whose num bers are limited, and who are naturally for the most part men in such positions that a claim of the kind upon their time is peculiarly Finland met the waters of the Neva, drove says a correspondent of the Levant Herald, to be reported from all parts of Asia Minur. It is un ancient but fatal practice with the native peasantry to burn down the woods for the purpose of turning the land into pasture for their cattle. In this way a large forest of pines on. the mountain of Nymph-Dagh was consumed the other day, while in the neighbourhood of Bel-Knivé, near Smyrna; a plantation of 3,000 olive trees has been destroyed, owing to the enrolessness of the country people. In Candia also, lately a large fire has been raging for eleven days among the mountains of the Sphakia and nearly decimated one of the most magnificent forests in the island. It is melanchely to observe that, as civilisation advances, coal mines are becoming exhausted and forests are disappearing. How the world is to get on ultimatel without fuel remains to be seen, but probably it will have to adopt the practice of cati g raw. ment in the absence of any means of kindling a Hitchen fire. This is, of course, assuming it has mny meat left to eat, which, looking at the growhad just arrived, and the passengers had not ing scarcity of that article of food, seems very doubtful. Times are sadly changed in England bond the steamer, but he refused to let him. since the following provision was inserted in The defendant then made a rush, but he again the Carta de Foresta, in the ninth year of Henry stopped him, whereupon the defendant pushed III :- Whatsoever archbishop, bishop, earl, him down, and fell with him. No bishop or member of the Upper House ever takes advantage of this provision to provide himself with a haunch of venison when going to or returning from his parliamentary duties, for the simple reason that our forests are nearly Sam-tai-choy, mistress of brothel 166, named all gone; and although with difficulty a little the Toong-fat-cheong, in Square-street, charg- strip of Epping Forest has been saved from ed a hawker of-dried ducks, named Sam-choy- destruction, people take their dinners there instead of sceking them in the covert as in the

(Economist, Oct. 25th.) the Bank of England have raised the rate from 6 to 7 per cent., and they are keeping the market rate somewhat near to their own rate, by berrowing on stock so us to take the surplus money out of the market. That operation it is important to observe, does not augment the financial magnitude of the reserve; no appreis paid to it in gold or notes; it is all paid in cheques. These cheques are paid from the bankers' balances, and as they are thereby reduced, the liabilities of the Bank are also reduced, and the proportion of the reserve to the liability is augmented. But the absolute amount of the reserve remains unchanged. As to the future, the prospects are still very uncertain. The prospect is brighter than when we last wrote, but the change is not much Defendant, who said he was a coolie, and only | to be relied on, and might at any instant be succeeded by an opposite one. > THE CANADIAN PACIFIC SCANDAL The Times observes that the Parliament of the Canadian Dominion which met at Ottawn, is compelled to approach at the very beginning of its legislative labours not one question, but a opened recently, and it is safe to predict that it will be prolonged, acrimunious, and exciting. Mr. Mackenzie, one of the leaders of the Ouposition, has moved an amendment declaring that the conduct of the Ministers in regard to the Pacific Railway investigation, and the evidence therein disclosed, is worthy of the severest censure. The presentation of the report, although it states no conclusive opinion, may perhaps be taken to indicate that the inquiry will henceforward be left under the control of Parliament. Now, at all events. there can be no insinuation that the Ministry is attacked mawares. The evidence taken by the Royal Commissioners, embracing so many damuging admissions on the part of Sir John Mac-Donald, Sir Hugh Alian, and all the busy host of inferior politicians and subordinate capitalists. will supply a fair starting-point for the more scarolling investigation which the Dominion Parliament is bound to institute. The Opposition, on their part, even though they may secure a rote condemning Sir John MacDonald's Government in the debate on the Address, cannot, with decent consistency, stop short at tint point. If Mr. Huntingdon and his friends really have in their possession the conclusive evidence which, ou constitutional grounds, they the time has come for them to produce it There is no longer any excuse for reticence: the incriminated Ministers and public men must be, once for all, either freed from the odious imputations under which they have rested for months past, or branded as guilty of shameful laxity in political morals. To the Canadians the Times leaves, in the first instance, the settlement of this painful question; but if an episode so discreditable to the colony up, it may become the duty of the mother country to express an emphatic opinion on the

(Pall Mall Garetle.) It is a maxim of legal procedure that the "best evidence" obtainable on any particular point shall be laid before the court; but it certainly seems that this maxim may in certain instances be carried too far. At Worshipstreet police-court the other day Dr. Sarvis, incdical officer of health for the parish of Bethaul-green, accompanied by a sanitary SASH inspector, came before Mr. Bushby with a quantity of fish, principally haddock, to ask that it, being putrid and unfit for buman food, might be condemned. The medical officer - stated that the fish had been seized that morningent a fish smoker's in the district, and she made affidavit of the fish being putrid. Dr. LAOD, Savis asked if the ningistrate would inspect the fish. Mr. Bushby said that this was not necessary. It appeared, however, that a quantity of the fish as, a sample had been netually brought into court, right in front of the bench; the court being at the time crowded to excess by persons, policemen, and others, compelled to attend. Mr. Bushby expressed his great surprise at this being done, and that he was not bound to small nil such articles. He ordered the fish to be removed from the court, which was immediately done, and the order for the destruction of the fish was subsequently made. There certainly seems to be no reason why a magistrate should to compelled to smell every article of food that he condemos, any more than he should be compelled to taste it and were the latter apreies of evidence to be insisted on in every ease, the office of magis-trate would be a lar more disagreeable one than it is at present. D that he has received an assortment of ENGLISH AND CHINESE DICTIONARY. La Anglo Chinese Dictionary, published | at the Daily Press Office, Hongkong. TAOR comprehensiveness and practical service this Work stands unrivalled. All the new Albums, Watch Stands, Paper Knives, Large Both the Court and Punti pronunciations are size, given, the accente being excefully marked on terials; a splendid fit guaranteed. the lest principle kitherto attained. The typography displays the success of an attempt to articles, viz. : Felt HATS, Silk HATS, Vienna make the Chinese and English type correspond BOOTS, WHITE SHIRTS, COLLARS, in the size of body, thereby effecting a vast SCARFS, UNDERSHIRTS, SUCKS, &c. economy of space, achieving a clearness, not previously attained, and dispensing with those vust margine and vacant epaces which have beretofore characterized Chinese publications. keep on stock, to solicit orders to be taken by To illustrate the vast scope of the work, the measure. following facts are submitted for consideration. Sm 1620 Chalmers' Vocabularly contains about 16,000 Chinese characters, and Medburst's English and Chinese Dictionary about 100,000, whilst this work contains more than 50,000 English words, and upwards of 600,000 Chinese churacters. Again, despite all the grainmars and other elementary works as yet published, the student of this difficult language absolutely requires examples to display the various appli cations and equivalents of different words which have one general meaning. Of these examples > many as any other Dictionary hitherto pub-For practical purposes the arrangement of the work is so complete, that a reference to its pages enables a person who understands English to communicate effectively with natives who understand nothing but Chi nese. In this respect the work will be found indispensable to all Europeans residing in China, and to the natives themselves it explains subjects fully with which very few indeed of them are perfectly acquainted. To parties resident in England and interested in Ching it cannot but be invaluable occasionally, FIHE HOUSEHOL'U COMPANION It comprises upwards of two thousand large i.

PERSONAL APPEARANCE OF

LOUIS XVI. When scated on the throne, Louis XVI. was not wanting in personableness, but, when on foot, it is true that he had an unpleasant | pany at current rates, subject to a discount of -waddle, like all the rest of his family. had well-formed, but very thick legs; his face was agreeable, but his teeth were so irregular as to make his laugh ungraceful. His eyes, never truly rendered by any painter, notwithstanding the light colour, noted by the world by the name of the King's eyes, were gentle, and had a kindness that was not evident at first, for his short sight prevented any openness in his glance. He had no exclusive pursuits, and refreshed bimself by hours of study after violent exercise.—Recollections of a Page at the Court of Louis XVI.

ATTORNEYS' FEES

(Swift's History of John Bull.) HOW JOHN LOOKED OVER HIS ATTORNEY'S DILL. When John first brought out the bills, the surprise of all the family was inexpressible at the prodigious dimensions of thein; they would have measured with the best bale of cloth in John's shop. Fees to judges, puisne judges, clerks, prothonotaries, filacers, chirographers, under-clerks, proclamators, connsel, witnesses, jurymen, marshals, tipstaffs, criers, porters; for enrollings, exemplifications, bails, vouchers, returns, caveats, examinations, filing of writs, entries, declarations, replications, recordats, noli prosequis, certioraris, mittimuses, demurrers, special verdicts, informations, sciro facins, supersedeas, habeas corpus, coach-hire, treating of witnesses, &c. "Verily," says John, "there are a prodigious number of learned words in this law; what a pretty science it is!" "Ay, but husband, you have paid for every syllable and letter of these fine words; bless me, what immense sums are at the bottom of the accompt!" John spent several weeks in looking over his liey. bills; and by comparing and stating his accompts, he discovered that, beside the extravagance of every article, he had been egregiously cheated; that he had paid for counsel that were never feed, for writs that were never drawn, for dinners that were never dressed, and journeys that were never made: in short, that the tradesmen, lawyers, and Frog, had agreed to throw the burden of the lawsuit upon his shoulders.

SOCIAL DRAMAS.

Why the novelist should sit down and draw drafts upon his own imagination when the doors of Bow-street were open to him daily, this editorial authority could not imazine. Moreover, the most successful novels, the stories most read and whose lessons took the deepest hold of the human heart, were Alrawn from history proper, or from history as it presented itself at the police courts and the courts of law generally. Charles Dickens' "Oliver Twist," with the Fagin and Bill Sykes episode; Fielding's "Tom Jones" and the sponging-houses; Hawthorne's "Scarlet "Letter," and the crime of the clergyman; "Adam Bede," with the seduction of Hesther, and her trial for murder: these and many more works were cited as examples, not only of criminal history furnishing the best materials for the novelist, but as an answer to certain namby-pamby critics, who denounced stories that dealt with those very social sins which formed the strength of our classic novels, past and present. The harm was when some weak writer drew upon his or her imagination, and mistook lubricity for the tender passion; when immorality was gilded over and made prosperous, which it never really is in the end; when scenes of social depravity are dwelt upon with a sort of loving care; when vice is made attractive and virtue repulsive; when the Magdalene is made to look better and purer, and holier than the true and divine Mary herself; then is society polluted by the novelist. But the writer who had the power to mould the realities of life to his purpose, and deal manfully and fearlessly with history as it was recorded in the newspapers, could not fail to secure a following, and might snap his fingers at the snarls of weak critics who could not discriminate between love and lust, between pruriency and human pussion. - From " Ulgtie," in The Gentleman's Magazine.

FILLING THE VACANT PULPIT It was not strange, then, that when Mr. Bonnyman was struck down by paralysis, the heads of the congregation should have made up their minds as to Edgar Wayne's being the next minister before the old man's breath was out. The Waynes themselves, of course. could not move in the matter, but there were plenty of people in Lorton anxious to oblige the banker's family. So the Hoskinses, and the Lanes, and the Cheshams, and other heads of the congregation, took counsel together, and unanimously agreed that young | adopted and confirmed at the Extraor, dents, and Balance against Bills of Lading. Mr. Wayne was just the man to suit them, and that, in fact, no other person need apply for the vacancy. There was naturally a good deal of grumbling among the other members (such changes to take effect from 1st Novem when along with the tidings of Mr. Bonny ber, 1871), the Net Profits of the Company will, when, along with the tidiogs of Mr. Bonnyman's death, they received the news that a successor had been already selected. Goodsir the grover, pointed out to everybody who came into his shop that this was but another instance of the arbitrary manner in which the affairs of the congregation were being conducted; and that goodness only knew where it was all to end, unless members stood up more firmly for their rights. Phillips, the chemist, who had aspired in vain to be an office-bearer for the last ten years, said that this was a fresh proof of how badly the deacon's court wanted new blood in it, and members had themselves to thank for such a slight when they allowed all the power to be usurped by an exclusive clique. And Swift, the manufacturer, who had made a fortune before he had made for himself a position in the little society of Lorton, cried out loudly prepared to grant Insurances as follows:against the arrogance of the aristocracy, and their unchristian disregard for the feelings in London, or at the principal Ports of India, of their fellow-members. If he were to have China, and Australia. any voice in the matter, every man in the church should have his free vote, and the Policies issued for long or short periods at election should be determined by the voices surrent rates. of the majority; if their freedom as a congregation was to be sacrificed in this manner. they might as well belong to the Established Church or to the Roman Catholics at once. -- Irom " Blackwood's Magazine,"
